Response of Tyson Foods, Inc. to
Statement by Smithfield

December 4, 2000

Tyson Foods, Inc. today issued the following statement in response to a statement by Smithfield Foods, Inc. about the value of its offer.

The Tyson offer is superior by any measure. Our proposal represents $26.00 per share in value to IBP stockholders, not $25.00. Our cash component adds certainty vs. Smithfield's all equity proposal. In addition, IBP shareholders will participate as owners of the premier supplier of chicken, beef and pork, something Smithfield cannot offer. Also, Smithfield's offer, which attempts to combine the #1 and #2 pork companies, will face significant regulatory hurdles and criticism from the farming community. This will undoubtedly delay closing. John Tyson, chairman and CEO of Tyson, also said, "In the long- term, IBP stockholders will benefit from our offer to combine the companies. The transaction would be instantly accretive even before any synergies. The combined company, with experienced management from Tyson and IBP, will be a leader in the highly-competitive food industry."
